However, some animal and cell line models show accelerated growth of cancer in the presence of low testosterone.

There is a remarkable correlation between a geomagnetic jerk in 2003 and a length of day change, but earlier links aren't as strong, he said.