Although patent expirations and the resulting generic drug competition ebb and flow, Kleinrock says, "that doesn't reduce the impetus and pressure on companies to ensure they get the benefit from the innovation they've invested in and ensure that their launch and marketing activities are as effective as they can be." Given the coming upswing in patent expiries, companies large and small spent 2010 looking at new ways of organizing their commercial operations and bringing innovation into their businesses, he says.
